Interurban Employes Go Out on Strike

FRANKFORT, NEW LENOX SERVICE IS INTERRUPTED

Frankfort, April 29—The strike fever which has been sweeping the country of late has also reached this community this week for beginning midnight, April 29th the employes of the Joliet and Eastern Traction Line went out on a strike. It is understood that the mail car and the milk car will be run however. As the traction company has the mail contract this service could not be interfered with by the strikers. It is said the strike is likely to mean a tump of the regular car service for three months. The employes made a demand for an increase in their wages but the company while willing to make some concessions they could not come up to the demands of the striking employes, and as a result the employees handed in their resignations.

Frankfort is not the only town to be effected by the walkout. New Lenox, Matteson and Chicago Heights will also feel the effects of the strike. Frankfort will not be crippled much for express and freight can be sent on the Michigan Central and the E. J. & E. roads. As far as the passenger service is concerned this will be over come by the use of autos. Fortunately this strike comes at a time of the year when the highways are free from snow.

RESTRICTION ON SUGAR

This poor man, for the "every"ar quest, with us again. The allowance has been cut down to two pounds so as to make the supply on hand go around. It is thought that with Canada sugar coming on the market the supply will be increased. If sugar prices keep on climbing the poor folks will be compelled to drink their coffee and tea, if they are lucky to have either, without sugar.

TO OPEN SODA FOUNTAIN

The ice cream season will be started in Frankfort on May first when Sippel Sisters will open their soda fountain. A large tourist trade is enjoyed by this popular ice cream parlor.

He is a well known former Mokena boy and is also well known in Frankfort. While in California last year Mr. and Mrs. Koerner visited Mr. McGovney while he was at Camp Fremont.

Mrs. McDonald is quite spry for one of her advanced years. She is greatly interested in church activities as well as the current events of the day. Her many friends extend congratulations.

The Joliet and Eastern Traction line is having a force of men engaged at the local car barns remodelling cars. The roofs are being taken off and the new roofs are being cut down 10 inches so that when the street car tracks are raised ten inches under the Rock Island viaduct at Highland park the cars will be able to pass under. A number of the cars were remodelled during the winter and now the balance will be remodelled.

By raising the tracks at the viaduct it is hoped to overcome the trouble which has been encountered heretofore when water backed under the viaduct and flooded the tracks.

The Frankfort aggregation it to be under the management of Frank Schau. All the base ball fans are eager to witness the first game of the season, but thus far the weather man has been against them. WET DELAYS CROPS

Farmers are greatly concerned over the continued wet weather. No field work has been possible. It has been many years since there has been as late a spring as this year. It is said that if a few days of warm weather would prevail the ground would soon dry off so oat sowing could be begun. The farmers declare that if a short crop should result this year a great many of the city strikers will go with empty stomachs next winter. The farm help problem has also been causing the farmer much concern. The scarcity of help has a great tendency to lower production.

MINISTER LAID UP

The Rev. Mr. Holiday, pastor of the local Methodist church who has been coming here each week from Evanston to fill the local pulpit, has not been able to discharge his ministerial duties of late on account of a very severe attack of rheumatism. CHAPTER XIII—Continued

Hilliard's eyes blazed; the audacity of the suggestion was obscured by the possibility of honor that it contained. "Yes!" he said thickly. "Yes! You bet I could!"

"And you wouldn't be afraid to keep on working for me? That is, if we got this Silverbow scheme all laundered clean before we started something else?"

"Not if you—"

"Then listen!" The broker's voice was soft and homely. "You've thought some hard things about me. Maybe you had some cause; I'm not disputing that. But I guess you've forgotten something. Something I told you when we first got together. I told you if you got me what I wanted I'd help you get what you want. Well—you've done your best. I got to give you credit. And maybe you've changed some of my ideas too. Maybe you've sort of worked me around to believing I haven't given you a square deal. Well—let the past bury its dead. I've got more than one string to my bow; I'm sort of tired of the old line of stuff; I'm thinking seriously of cutting it all out and going in for the safe and sane. It isn't so juicy, but it's safe. Am I right or am I wrong? All the cards on the table—I'm no fool. Hilliard—and the bottom's falling out of this promotion game. So if you think you can blossom out into a legitimate salesman of high-grade bonds—of course there wouldn't be nearly as much in it for you—I've got more than half a mind to give you the chance. It's a risk, but I guess I owe it to you. He said his pudgy hand across the table and smiled peacefully. "I've taken a strong fancy to you, son—let's be respectable together. What do you say to that?"

In his feverish joy Hilliard was willing to ignore the obvious fact that the broker's repentance was considerably overdue, and that it was founded on expediency and not on principle. The thought of working longer for Harmon—even if the securities he had to sell in future were most conservative—filled him with nausea; but if that was the only way to save the situation how could Hilliard decline? How in his duty to himself, could he refuse to work again for Harmon, if this were the only means to save his friends their money already lost? He felt his veins throbbing to his agitation.

"Is . . . is that a bona fide offer?" he faltered. Harmon's hand slapped the table for emphasis.

"Straight as a string. To tell the truth you're sort of on my conscience. You're with me? All right! Then as far as I'm concerned the contract's canceled here and now. Got it with you?"

"No, I—"

The broker's face darkened. "Where is it?"

Hilliard was disinclined to tell how and why he had trusted it to Cullen. "It's safe," he said. He could hardly contain himself; he looked and looked at Harmon, trying faithfully to reconcile the man and his appearance and his principles, and he failed—but here was the great reality confronting him—and the millionth chance had magically come true. It was warped honesty but it was honesty no less.

Harmon licked his lips. "Well, we'll clean up the whole transaction today and start with a new deal. That's settled. Oh, don't carry on like that, Hilliard—Now about this chap, Waring—"

"Oh, you still want to see him, do you?"

Harmon hesitated. "Sure! Give him a little surprise, eh? If he's the man who's been bombing us we'll spice his guns first—What?" He laughed noisily and Hilliard was almost too excited to dislike the laugh. "Don't bother to telephone the Onondaga; we'll just walk over."

"But I thought you wanted to stay away from there?" Hilliard was displaying many of the symptoms of intoxication.

"Oh, not when everything's going along so smooth and nice! We can go up in your room and have Waring up there and be just as private as anywhere else."

Accordingly, and to the chagrin of a hovering waiter, they quitted their booth and went out to the open air. They reached the Onondaga; they arrived at the mezzanine floor; they were safe in Hilliard's apartment.

"My!" said Harmon jocosely. "I wish I could afford to live like this! But you've got a rich backer, and I haven't." He rubbed his hands in great good nature; his eyes were sparkling and his fat body was a quiver with vanity. "Well, the first thing to do . . . Where did you say you keep that contract of ours hidden?"

"Is there any hurry about that now?" Hilliard was fairly beside himself with joy.

"Well—" The sudden whirr of the telephone buzzer seemed to rattle the broker's nerves, for he started violently. "Who's that?"

"Just a moment. . . ." Hilliard took down the receiver. "Yes? . . . Oh, yes, have him . . . no; hold the wire—" He beckoned hilariously to Harmon. "Waring's downstairs now!"

"You're ready to see him, aren't you?" The broker was suddenly plunged into uncertainty.

"Yes—no! No!"

"What's wrong?" Hilliard was visited by an unwelcome chill; he tried to analyze it and couldn't.

The big man was breathing with difficulty. "I . . . you go down and . . . no, that wouldn't do either. . . I want to see him alone. I want to get him to call off his investigator, so when we begin a new campaign we won't have any verified report against us on the old—"

"No, sir!" Hilliard shook his head smilingly. "I'm the man who's had to stand the gaff so far; I'm going to be in on any conferences. That's my play!"

Harmon licked his lips again and swallowed repeatedly.

"Well . . . it's . . . if you let me do the talking then . . . or . . ."

Hilliard turned back to the transmitter.

"Ask him to come right up," he said. He replaced the instrument and looked alarmedly at the broker. "You're not well!"

"Yes, I am. . . . Now let's get at that contract! There's no sense talking business until that's canceled, is there?"

As Hilliard stared at him an icy wave of suspicion swept him from head to foot.

"What's your hurry? It's my funeral, isn't it?"

"You are anxious, though! Harmon, I—"

"No . . . no hurry at all. Only as long as I'm here . . . as a favor to me . . . let's cancel it. Where is it? I . . . Good God, son, don't you want that thing out of the way? It's no good with an alias on it! I'll put up the money—I—"

A sharp rap on the door stopped him short. Hilliard turned the knob; Waring and Mr. Cullen burst in.

"Why, Mr. Cullen!" he said in astonishment. "They didn't tell me you were here! Hello, Rufus."

"Hilliard!" Cullen's face was red and excited. "Oh, I beg your pardon!" He had seen Harmon.

Hilliard, taken aback by the sudden change, began to phrase the introductions; he had only just begun when Harmon interrupted—Harmon with a set jaw and blazing cheeks. He was standing by the writing table, and one hand was resting heavily upon it. His manner was curiously apprehensive, curiously desperate.

"Ah! . . . Mr. Cullen . . . most happy, I'm sure . . . and Mr. Waring . . . delighted!" His voice was sullen in its throatiness. "Gentlemen, I have the honor to be president . . . of the Silverbow Mining corporation . . ." He paused; his hands weaved aimlessly. "Of Montana. . . . Gentlemen. . . . I hear there's been some adverse criticism of our property . . . you're stockholders, I understand . . . not used to criticism . . ." He flung his head erect. "I offer you personally . . . to relieve you . . . of any and all obligations . . . and pay back penny for penny." Here his knees shook and he swayed appreciably. He was holding himself upright only by tremendous, visible effort.

"The man's sick!" Cullen stepped toward him. Waring and Hilliard were standing fascinated. The broker glared at Cullen with both hands.

"No, I'm not sick! . . . Contract calls for delivery of ninety-nine per cent of capital stock . . . on payment of a hundred and twenty thousand dollars . . . before December . . ."

"But I thought you wanted to stay away from there?" Hilliard was displaying many of the symptoms of intoxication.

"Oh, not when everything's going along so smooth and nice! We can go up in your room and have Waring up there and be just as private as anywhere else."

"No, I'm not sick! . . . Contract calls for delivery of ninety-nine per cent of capital stock . . . on payment of a hundred and twenty thousand dollars . . . before December . . ."

"But I thought you wanted to stay away from there?" Hilliard was displaying many of the symptoms of intoxication.

"Oh, not when everything's going along so smooth and nice! We can go up in your room and have Waring up there and be just as private as anywhere else."

Accordingly, and to the chagrin of a hovering waiter, they quitted their booth and went out to the open air. They reached the Onondaga; they arrived at the mezzanine floor; they were safe in Hilliard's apartment.

"My!" said Harmon jocosely. "I wish I could afford to live like this! But you've got a rich backer, and I haven't." He rubbed his hands in great good nature; his eyes were sparkling and his fat body was a quiver with vanity. "Well, the first thing to do . . . Where did you say you keep that contract of ours hidden?"

"Is there any hurry about that now?" Hilliard was fairly beside himself with joy.

"Well—" The sudden whirr of the telephone buzzer seemed to rattle the broker's nerves, for he started violently. "Who's that?"

"Just a moment. . . ." Hilliard took down the receiver. "Yes? . . . Oh, yes, have him . . . no; hold the wire—" He beckoned hilariously to Harmon. "Waring's downstairs now!"

You're ready to see him, aren't you?" The broker was suddenly plunged into uncertainty.

"Yes—no! No!"

"What's wrong?" Hilliard was visited by an unwelcome chill; he tried to analyze it and couldn't.

The big man was breathing with difficulty. "I . . . you go down and . . . no, that wouldn't do either. . . I want to see him alone. I want to get him to call off his investigator, so when we begin a new campaign we won't have any verified report against us on the old—"

"No, sir!" Hilliard shook his head smilingly. "I'm the man who's had to stand the gaff so far; I'm going to be in on any conferences. That's my play!"

Harmon licked his lips again and swallowed repeatedly.

"Well . . . it's . . . if you let me do the talking then . . . or . . ."

Hilliard turned back to the transmitter.

"Ask him to come right up," he said. He replaced the instrument and looked alarmedly at the broker. "You're not well!"

"Yes, I am. . . . Now let's get at that contract! There's no sense talking business until that's canceled, is there?"

As Hilliard stared at him an icy wave of suspicion swept him from head to foot.

"What's your hurry? It's my funeral, isn't it?"

"You are anxious, though! Harmon, I—"

"No . . . no hurry at all. Only as long as I'm here . . . as a favor to me . . . let's cancel it. Where is it? I . . . Good God, son, don't you want that thing out of the way? It's no good with an alias on it! I'll put up the money—I—"

A sharp rap on the door stopped him short. Hilliard turned the knob; Waring and Mr. Cullen burst in.

"Why, Mr. Cullen!" he said in astonishment. "They didn't tell me you were here! Hello, Rufus."

"Hilliard!" Cullen's face was red and excited. "Oh, I beg your pardon!" He had seen Harmon.

Hilliard, taken aback by the sudden change, began to phrase the introductions; he had only just begun when Harmon interrupted—Harmon with a set jaw and blazing cheeks. He was standing by the writing table, and one hand was resting heavily upon it. His manner was curiously apprehensive, curiously desperate.

"Ah! . . . Mr. Cullen . . . most happy, I'm sure . . . and Mr. Waring . . . delighted!" His voice was sullen in its throatiness. "Gentlemen, I have the honor to be president . . . of the Silverbow Mining corporation . . ." He paused; his hands weaved aimlessly. "Of Montana. . . . Gentlemen. . . . I hear there's been some adverse criticism of our property . . . you're stockholders, I understand . . . not used to criticism . . ." He flung his head erect. "I offer you personally . . . to relieve you . . . of any and all obligations . . . and pay back penny for penny." Here his knees shook and he swayed appreciably. He was holding himself upright only by tremendous, visible effort.

"The man's sick!" Cullen stepped toward him. Waring and Hilliard were standing fascinated. The broker glared at Cullen with both hands.

"No, I'm not sick! . . . Contract calls for delivery of ninety-nine per cent of capital stock . . . on payment of a hundred and twenty thousand dollars . . . before December . . ."

"But I thought you wanted to stay away from there?" Hilliard was displaying many of the symptoms of intoxication.

get me my . . . check-book!" All at once he seemed to collapse; his head hung low, and his breathing became stertorous. His cheeks puffed queerly.

Hilliard sprang to him. "Rufus! Call the office! Get the house doctor!"

Cullen had raced to the bathroom for a glass of water; he raced back again, spilling half of it. Hilliard was chasing the broker's wrists. The three men strained at the unwieldy, unresisting bulk, while leaden fear clutched at their hearts.

The house physician bustled in to find the broker lying on the bed in a profound coma; his reflexes had gone from him; he couldn't be roused. There was no need of a stethoscope.

"Order an ice bag," said the man of medicine hastily. He himself was rattling among his vials for the calomel. Rufus was at the telephone.

"Anything I can do?" asked Hilliard earnestly. His suspicions had crystallized; and he was bitterly aware that the broker had planned not justice, but some new brand of perfidy; nevertheless, the man was unquestionably in danger—and revenge could wait.

"Nothing—just give me plenty of room."

As the three stood watching painfully, Cullen put out his hand to Hilliard, and spoke under his breath.

"Henry—when did he come?"

"Only just now. An hour ago."

"Hadn't he told you? Or hadn't you heard?"

"Heard what?"

Cullen motioned to Waring.

"Give it to him, Rufus . . . Oh, I see; I see—"

The law student, without a word, produced a yellow blank and thrust it at Hilliard. He flashed a glance of indescribable contempt at the supine broker; his eyes had lost some of their anxiety.

"Oh, the big crook!" he said boyishly. "The big crook!"

"Sh-h-h! Rufus!" Still, Hilliard, at heart, agreed with him to the letter.

The boy stood close to the masquerader.

"I'm sorry, Hilliard . . . it came out of me."

He had been hunting for you ever since . . . Hilliard wasn't interested.

"I'll wait until—"

Cullen signed to him peremptorily. "Read it, I tell you! . . . It'll give you a slant on him!"

Hilliard peered over the foot of the bed; Harmon was still lying inert. The physician nodded sidewise.

"Nothing for you to do," he said grimly; and Hilliard, only partly aware of what he was doing, gave heed to the yellow blank.

The fourth telegram of the day was from Butte, Mont., addressed to Waring.

"Arrived here last night after delay in Chicago. This morning's papers contain information as follows: 'The faulted vein on XLNC property adjoining Silverbow claim number one has been located about twenty feet from Silverbow boundary. Indications are ore body running at least eighty per cent average and some places high as twenty. Also some zinc and silver and traces of manganese. This evidently extends well into Silverbow, where the greatest values are undoubtedly lying, and judging from records of old XLNC vein it's a tremendously big strike! Understand XLNC owners offering large sum, said to be well over half-million, for a controlling interest. I strongly advise all of you to get aboard for as much as Hilliard will let go. Am sending this from office of Cooley, Benjamin & Russell, who will not send separate report unless you want it. This is wonderful news and mine is sure winner, even if only a fraction as large as reported. Please show this message to Hilliard. J. J. ARMSTRONG.'"

Hilliard sat down in the nearest chair. The lump in his throat was choking him; the moment was so big that his feelings were primitive; his expression of them were very simple. He only smiled; the meaningless, vacuous smile of an infant. That smile embraced the entire universe; it was indicative of a happiness so limitless, so perfect, that it was almost foolish. So Harmon, knowing from his own sources of the sudden strike, had rushed to Syracuse to pose as a man of honor! So Harmon had wanted to meet Waring—and find if Waring had yet heard the news, and, if he hadn't, stop the investigation by apparent frankness and ready restitution. So Harmon had been eager to destroy the contract, to promise Hilliard anything and everything, to repay the money that was subscribed already—and then, as sole owner, to take an enormous profit for himself.

No one in the whole world—and least of all, Waring and Cullen—could have remotely fathomed the thoughts that were eddying in Hilliard's brain. They were not for his own aggrandizement; they were for the Cullens and Durants and for the others who need never know the acid of disillusionment. They were for the ideals he had struggled toward; they were for the friends who had stood by him. And there was one very special and very manly thought for Jack Armstrong.

strong, who had been so courageous in his defeat, and so neutral in his behavior afterward, and who now had sent the generous news winging eastward, with the request that Hilliard should learn at once of his vindication.

And as Hilliard sat there, smiling out into the silent room, and struggling to visualize the extent of fortune which had so abruptly smitten him, there was a dry murmur from the bed where Harmon lay, and a resulting silence so pregnant with meaning that the smile faded, and Hilliard was on his feet, open-eyed with the present horror brought back to him.

The physician was rising slowly from cramped knees.

"It's all over," he said; paused, and added: "Apoplexy."

The only man in all America who could have testified to Hilliard's simulation had ceased to breathe.

CHAPTER XIV.

As Dr. Durant, having already given counsel this morning to seven patients, appeared at the door of the ante-room to signal to the eight, he was palpably astonished at the presence of the young man who sat next to the door. The Doctor was very human; the Doctor was very adaptable; but for thirty years he had managed to keep the social and professional phases of his life entirely apart, and at the very first glance he was aware that Hilliard hadn't come to consult with him professionally. Nevertheless, he raised his finger in the usual sign; Hilliard followed him to the inner room.

It was Hilliard's introduction to the Doctor's morning manner; and even in his own exalted spirit, he yielded slightly to the restraint in the atmosphere. The Doctor was bland, smiling, approachable, and yet not at all the same man as he appeared at the house on James street. He seemed detached from the hampering littleness of a household; there was no air of intentional repose about him. Hilliard, in spite of the importance of his mission, felt apologetic; he felt as though he were unwittingly robbing science of its most valuable asset, which is time.

"I know this isn't exactly the proper thing to do," he said, "but I'm leaving town in an hour or so . . . I thought you might spare me five minutes, Doctor, even if it is a little irregular. Can you?"

"What seems to be the trouble?" The Doctor's tone was a mild invitation to squander nothing on preliminaries.

"Mr. Cullen and I are running down to New York today . . . You've seen the morning papers, haven't you?"

"Yes," The Doctor nodded. "And Cullen telephoned me last night. Was Mr. . . . what was his name: Harmon? . . . was he a close friend of yours, Hilliard?"

"No; just a business associate . . . I didn't know him very well personally—socially, I should say. But it changes some of my plans . . . Mr. Cullen and I have to go to New York for a few days and after that we're going out to Montana together."

The Doctor tapped his desk thoughtfully.

"On account of this?"

"Partly, and partly not. The whole perspective's changed; we've got to get to work. Now, the last time I saw you . . . why, that was only yesterday!" He broke off, laughing at himself. "It seems so much longer than that! Why, you said then that if I ever needed any one of several different things, including seventy-five hundred dollars, to come to you. And you spoke as though you really meant it, Doctor . . . So I've come!"

The Doctor regarded him steadily for a moment, and resumed tapping the glass pad on his desk with a meditative forefinger.

"You've reconsidered, have you?"

"Not that so much—but we've had fresh information. Jack Armstrong's out there, indirectly representing Mr. Cullen, and we've heard from our own lawyers besides. So on the whole, I'm willing to let you in if you're willing to come, in spite of what I said at lunch yesterday."

The Doctor hesitated.

"Not that I doubt you at all," he said, "but when Cullen telephoned me last night, he said that you and he had raised all the money you needed in half an hour after you went out to look for it. You see, I have some channels of information myself! So I can't help wondering why you need this now." Nevertheless, he was hunting for his check-book.

"We don't need it—I simply insisted on keeping a place open for you, on the chance that you hadn't changed your mind."

"You're fully satisfied it's the right thing for me to do?"

"Yes, Doctor, I am."

The Doctor held his pen poised in the air. "I'm not sure I'm really entitled to it. Doesn't it really belong to some one who was on the spot last night?"

Hilliard's eyes twinkled.

"You're fond of talking about motives, Doctor. . . . You'd have let me have that money yesterday, wouldn't you?"

"Didn't I offer it to you?"

"Yes, sir; you did. But was it because you thought you'd make a big profit, or was it just to help me?"

"Why—"

"You see," said Hilliard cheerily, "if you're going to have these mercenary motives, you've got to let me have some, too. I've let friendship interfere with business twice in two days. And you're not the only one I held a place open for—Rufus and Jack are in it, too. It was my privilege to make that condition—and I did."

The Doctor scribbled rapidly.

"Then I'll keep my promise . . . But would you mind telling me what it is I'm buying?"

"Here's

SIX MONTHS I COULD NOT WORK

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Me Strong and Able to Work—I Recommend It To All My Friends.

Bayonne, N. J.—“I had pains in back and legs so that I could not stand caused by female trouble. I felt so tired all the time, had bad headaches, and for six months I could not work. I was treated by a physician and took other remedies but got no relief. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has helped me very much. I am well and strong and now able to do my work. I cannot thank you enough and I recommend your medicine to my friends who are sick.”—Mrs. SUSIE SACATANSKY, 25 East 17th St., Bayonne, N. J.

It must be admitted by every fair-minded, intelligent person, that a medicine could not live and grow in popularity for over forty years, and today hold a record for such wonderful success as does Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, without possessing great virtue and actual worth. Such medicines must be looked upon and termed both standard and dependable by every thinking person.

A Well-Arranged Garden—By Providing Supports for Certain Crops Almost Twice the Number of Plants Can Be Grown on a Given Area.

VALUABLE HINTS HELP IN GARDEN

Labor Saving Facilities May Be Provided Without Much Additional Expense.

the garden is greatly reduced. For instance, all such crops as carrots, parsnips, salsify, onions, beets and turnips that require very little space between the rows should be given another place and those that cast considerable shade should be placed at the north side of the garden, where they will not shade the small crops.

Making Watering Easy.

Another special facility for the garden consists of a line of perforated pipe that may be attached to the hose and used to irrigate the crops. Where the land is nearly level, watering can be done very conveniently by discharging the hose into small furrows alongside rows and irrigating the crops by the flooding or furrow system. Wherever the land is steep or uneven, the line of perforated pipe will distribute the water to better advantage. This can be used where a water supply is available, and it is doubtful if it would pay where special pumping arrangements are necessary in order to provide the water. In sections where irrigation must be depended upon entirely for growing crops, special arrangements for getting water upon the garden must be made. Last year a great many farmers of the irrigated sections provided special facilities for watering their gardens.

SELL DIRECT TO CONSUMERS

Good Possibilities Offered to Farmer Having Farm Produce to Dispose Of.

Making a personal canvass among city persons and soliciting their trade offers good possibilities for one having farm produce to sell to obtain regular customers. Success will depend largely on the personality of the person making the canvass, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. It may be necessary, also, to solicit a large number of families in order to obtain a few customers. Various other methods of obtaining customers have been tried. Whatever the method used, it usually requires painstaking work and considerable effort to get a number of reliable customers.

Consumers often have difficulty in getting in touch with reliable producers. As many farmers will not market direct, it is necessary to seek producers in localities without a good market for farm produce.

RATION FOR LITTLE CALVES

Three Parts Oats, One Part Corn and One of Oil Meal Is Excellent for Youngsters.

An excellent grain ration for little calves is three parts of oats, one part of corn and one part of oil meal. Keep the grain fresh. Do not spill milk in it and have a sour manger. Let the calves have free access to fresh and clean water, and also to salt. The common idea that calves will drink too much water is a mistake. During the first four months calves should not, however, eat too much grain.

POULTRY NOTES

Cleanliness is an enemy of disease.

Feed fowls well but better have them a little hungry than overfed.

Charred corn occasionally makes a good feed, especially in cold weather.

The hen that cackles loudest and longest doesn't always lay the most eggs.

Poultry soon become accustomed to regular hours of feeding. Don't disappoint them.

Pullets and cockerels should be at least nine months old before they are used for breeding purposes.

One objection to using very much sloppy food is that it often leads to filth and unsanitary conditions.

While ducks require plenty of water in the daytime, they should be provided with dry quarters at night. No other fowls are more quickly injured by dampness.

MUSIC OF ANCIENT GREECE

Bands That Marched to War With the Soldiers Played on Flutes, Pipes and Harps.

Poetry in ancient Greece was accompanied by the cithara and the lyre, while the flute was played by both men and women in furnishing martial music to the soldiers in time of war. Musical bands marched to war with the soldiers and played on flutes, pipes and harps.

The lyre and the harp were preferred by the Greeks for private use, for it was thought they did not prevent one from remaining master of himself, while the flute, pipe or clarinet put the man beside himself and obscured reason. There were extensive choirs whose music was distinctly connected with the religious life of the people. These choirs were composed of both men and women and were employed for public and private religious festivals.

The choirs celebrated victories in war, deaths, holy days, births and marriages. Alkman, who lived as early as 650 B. C., wrote a choir song for girls which was a dramatic part song.

Practical Persons.

“You never hear of anybody addressing a poem to his caddy.”

“No.”

“Still there must be bonds of sympathy and gratitude between many golf players and their faithful caddies.”

“No doubt; but the average golf player has neither the time nor the ability to write poetry, and the average caddy would rather be presented with a dollar than a bound volume of eulogies.”—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Even a girl with dreamy eyes is apt to be wide awake to her matrimonial chances.

TEACHER SHORT OF SUPPLIES

Tommy's Excuse Rather a Poor One, but He Was in a Mighty Tight Corner.

The village schoolmaster had done very well with his war saving association. The scholars brought in their pennies regularly every week; some even had as much as a shilling to subscribe.

One Monday morning Mrs. Oates gave her son Tommy the sum of three pence to pay in. On his return for dinner the good lady asked to see his card.

“Look here, Tommy,” she said sternly, “there's only twopence entered here! How is that?”

Tommy grew pale as he saw that his sin had found him out. But the taffee in the village shop had been so tempting. However, he did his best.

“Yes, mother,” he stammered, “that's all the ink the teacher had.”—London Answers.

The Largest Animal.

Most boys have seen pictures of the huge lizard which roamed the earth millions of years ago, and is supposed to be the largest animal which ever lived. Searchers in Utah have discovered some bones of an animal which was twice the size of this great prehistoric animal. A hole 600 feet long and 80 feet deep had been dug when some one claimed the land. The government thereupon created a National Dinosaur Monument, comprising the locality, which will be protected until the investigations are finished. The work is being directed by the Carnegie Institute, which discovered and assembled the skeleton of the familiar dinosaur.—Boys' Life for March.

A fast young man is seldom able to keep up with his running expenses.

NOTHING TO DO BUT WORK!

When One Thinks of It, It Is Rather a Foolish Way to Spend One's Lifetime.

The most common complaint we hear from everybody we know is that they can't keep up with all there is to be done. We make the same complaint. Like you all, we undertake to do seventeen thousand things more than the hours of the day will permit us to do.

It is an awful mistake. To be driven like a galley slave is the rule we have made for our lives. And, oh, to quit it all, or to quit all but the things we would like to do and are worth while!

To never catch up, to never know what it is not to be tired—it is a foolish way to spend a lifetime. This one and only little lifetime that is ours.

And what are we to do about it? Cut loose and run away; we guess it is the only thing to do.—Los Angeles Times.

Reckless Experiment.

“Friend,” said Cactus Joe to the man who had just alighted from the bus, “could you tell us what a soviet is?”

“What do you want to know for?” “Crimson Gulch has been getting so orderly and subdued that some of our most prominent citizens are talking about leaving. We need some excitement and we wouldn't mind a little trouble if it didn't last too long. From what I can hear a soviet, if it was managed right, would about fill the bill.”

Straight talk on Cream
Separators by

Frankfort, Ill.

USERS of De Laval Cream Separators have carried away every first prize awarded at conventions of the National Creamery Buttermakers' Association since their first meeting in 1892.
The record is unbroken!

The reason is that
De Laval bowl design,
together with low speed, enables the delivery of butterfat globules unbroken in their natural condition—thus insuring better butter.

Because of its close skimming the De Laval produces more cream, which means more butter.

Thus the user of a
De Laval gets both more and better butter.

Milch Goats in America.
Six thousand goats are listed in the American milch goat registry. Three breeds are recognized. The Toggenburgs were originally imported from the valley of that name in Switzerland.
They are distinguished by exact brown and white markings, especially about the head. Saanen goats hail from the Saanen valley, Switzerland, and are pure white. The Anglo-Nubian goats are a cross between the common English goat and the Nubians of Africa.
They are a spotted variety and vary in color.

Early United States Coins.
The office of the director of the mint says that the earliest coins were authorized by act of congress of April 2, 1792. This act authorized the manufacture of the ten dollar gold eagle, half eagle, quarter eagle, and the silver dollar, half dollar, quarter dollar, dime and half dime. It would be impossible to state which were minted first, as they were all coined about the same time.

Wood Alcohol Always Injurious.
Wood alcohol may cause blindness not only when taken as a beverage but by absorption through the skin, in the case of the use of such articles as hair tonics containing the poison.
It may also produce the same effect by way of lungs when inhaled from varnishes, etc.

Cats' Crimes Against Birds.
It is estimated that there are 25-000,000 cats in the United States. If one-fourth of this number kill birds, each cat killing only five birds per annum, it would mean over 31,000,000 birds killed by cats each year in the United States; but it has been carefully estimated by Dr. A. K. Fisher that each cat averages 20 birds per annum, and still "Tabby" is exalted to the seat of honor—Los Angeles Times.

Priests Not Always Celibates.
From the very beginning of the Catholic church it was the custom for those entering the priesthood to renounce marriage. It was not obligatory, and the rule requiring men, who were already married at the time of ordination, to separate from their wives, was not made until the end of the fourth century, when Pope Siricius forbade the clergy to marry, and ordered the separation from their wives of priests already married. This accounts for the fact that St. Peter, the first head of the Catholic church, was a married man.

Nature's Laws Must Be Obeyed.
I do not believe that God, or nature,
or a master, or metaphysical formulae can or will make good in a miraculous way for the inevitable results of our transgressions of the natural laws that govern our being. If such miraculous healing were possible and of common occurrence, what occasion would there be for the exercise of reason, will or self-control?—Henry Lindlahr, M. D.

Art Criticism.
A conceited painter in Brooklyn named Tilton, carried away by his enthusiasm for his own productions, declared at a studio tea to a group of his devotees: "After all, there are but three great painters—Titian, Tintoretto and Tilton." When the remark was repeated to Mrs. W. W. Storey, mother of the eminent painter, Julian Storey, she exclaimed: "Well, the only thing I know to equal the 'Assumption' of Titian is the assumption of Tilton."

CZECHS RAZE AUSTRIAN MONUMENT

This photograph shows what happened to the monument which had been erected by Austria on the square where in 1820 many Bohemians were killed when the Czechs-Slovaks again became supreme in their country.

"How soon do you think it'll be?"
Hilliard laughed outright; a laugh of utter happiness. "Right now, if you try so."

The Doctor puzzled.
"You don't make it clear," he said.
"Then I will. Mr. Embree, down at the Trust and Deposit company, was one of the men who wanted to get in with us, and couldn't. He was just so late. But when I told him what I was saving out for you, he authorized me to make you an offer. I'm acting as his agent, that is, and I've got check here, and if you want to enclose that receipt over to him, you can have this." He presented the banker's check; the Doctor stared; it was payable to himself, signed by Embree, and written for fifteen thousand dollars.

The Most Welcome Tire That Ever Came to Market

Men Who Appreciate Superlative Values Prefer The Brunswick

In every great tire factory, the chief question is: "How much can we give for the money?" And the product depends on the policy adopted.

Every man who has become acquainted with Brunswick Tires knows that Brunswick standards are again evident. This famous concern—noted as a leader in every line it entered since 1845—has once more proved that its policy is right.

A perfect tire is simply a matter of knowledge and standards and skill. No secrets nor patents prevent making an ideal tire.

But standards come first. For in tire making there is vast room for skipping, for subtle economies, for hidden shortcomings. Makers without the highest standards don't build high-grade tires.

The Brunswick organization of tire makers includes a brilliant staff of technical experts. Not a man among them has spent less than 20 years in handling rubber.

Each is a master of his craft.
And the new ideas they bring to the attention of Brunswick directors receive sincere consideration.

Every proved betterment is adopted unanimously.

The Brunswick Tire is a combination of acknowledged features—plus Brunswick standards of manufacture.

The result is a super-tire, the like of which you have never known before. The kind of a tire you will gladly join in welcoming.

Yet Brunswicks cost no more than like-type tires.

Try ONE Brunswick. We promise a surprise. And we feel certain that you will want ALL Brunswicks.

Then good tires will have a new meaning to you.

—Teeth Like Chalk

Mr. Herbert M. Gessner writes from his home in Berlin, N. H.:

I had stomach trouble over ten years;
kept getting worse. I tried everything for relief but it came back worse than ever.
Last fall I got awfully bad; could only eat light loaf bread and tea. In January I got so bad that what I would eat would sour and boil; my teeth would be like chalk.
I suffered terribly. I prayed every day for something to cure me. One day I read about EATONIC and told my wife to get me a box at the drug store as I was going to work at 4 p. m. I took one-third of it and began to feel relief; when it was three-fourths gone, I felt fine and when it was used up I had no pains. Wife got me another box but I have felt the pain but twice. I used five tablets out of the new box and I have no more stomach trouble.
Now I write to tell you how thankful I am that I heard of EATONIC. I feel like a new man; I eat what I like, drink plenty of water, and it never hurts me at all."

From sow to ground feed is the logical step for young pigs if they're going to thrive from the start. Pigs love corn. Last Night's Dreams

—What They Mean

DID YOU DREAM OF THE DEAD?

DREAMS of the dead are exceedingly common and are generally very vivid; which is ascribed by Ellis to the fact that in such dreams two opposing groups of memories contend in one of which our relatives or friends are alive and in the other dead; and the effort of the dream consciousness to adjust these two groups causes an intensity in the dream emotion experienced. The conflict of these opposing forces is the reason that frequently in our dreams of the dead we are at first perplexed to find our dear ones with us and say to ourselves: "But he (or she) is dead." But the "stream of images which represents them as alive comes from an older and richer source, is the more powerful," so that it overcomes the other and the dream consciousness seeks to adjust the difference by some such thought as that the person dreamed of is not really dead but was only reported to have died. Sometimes the older emotional stream is so much the stronger that we do not experience this perplexity. In all cases where we see our dead in dreams as alive our dream consciousness accepts it as a fact that they are alive.

To the mystics to dream that we see the dead alive is accounted a very favorable omen, especially if they speak to us. If they look reproachfully at us, or demand of us an accounting of some of our acts, it is a sign that we had better hasten to correct our lives and take greater heed to our behavior. In this connection the words of Doctor him to become a telegraph operator, when he first came in contact with the kind of electricity which produces head-end collisions.

After Mr. Edison had learned the Morse alphabet so that he could tell a dash from a semi-colon his inventive genius began to break out faster than a fat boy with the measles. Whenever he wanted something that nobody else had thought of, he would go out and invent it and then cry "Eureka," after having it patented in several different languages. Most of Mr. Edison's patents are still doing business at the old stand.

Mr. Edison gives away a great deal of money without advertising for bids and has helped many a young man to get somewhere on his own power. He rises at 4 a. m. and mingles with fuses, retorts, crucibles, spark plugs and other forms of inanimate life until midnight. He is one of the few Americans who have the cross of the Legion of Honor pinned neatly over the platoon. He sleeps with a pencil over his left ear and a tablet under his pillow, thus making it impossible for any meritorious invention to get away.

SCHOOL DAYS

Radcliffe, the eminent English investigator, are interesting. He says: "You are more or less at liberty to believe that the dead and living may exist together in a world of spirit in which the so-called living are less living than the so-called dead; and that, in fact, the dead may command, as they do in dreams." For a long time materialistic writers, Herbert Spencer among the number, have attributed the belief of primitive man and savages in a spirit world to dreams of the dead. Before 1895 no attempt was made at a scientific analysis of dreams of this type but they are now attracting much attention.

Meat Substitutes.

Meat, though wholesome and well liked by the majority of people, is not essential to a well-balanced meal and many housekeepers who are interested in lessening the food bill, substitute some other foods equally or more nourishing and at less cost. Foods to take the place of meat should be rich in protein and fat. Cheese is a staple food with which everyone is familiar and one which may be used in a variety of ways.

In substituting cheese or any food for meat, especial pains should be taken to serve dishes which are well liked by the family.

Cheese Custard.

Spread sufficient slices of bread to supply the family, rather generously with butter. Place in a shallow baking pan and pour over a custard using one egg for each cupful of milk, salt and paprika to taste. Bake covered until the custard is set and serve at once while puffy and light.

Rice Croquettes.

Warm two cupfuls of cooked rice in a double boiler with enough milk to soften it. Add two tablespoonfuls of butter, salt and cayenne to taste, with two tablespoonful of chopped parsley. Spread the mixture on a plate to cool, then shape. Roll in fine crumbs which are seasoned with salt and pepper, dip in beaten egg and roll in crumbs again. Cook in deep fat a delicate brown. Serve hot with cheese sauce. Add a cupful or less of grated cheese to a white sauce.

Cheese and Celery.

Select short white stalks of celery with deep grooves in them. Mix cream cheese with salt and finely chopped pecans. Fill the grooves with the mixture and chill. Serve cut in small pieces, on lettuce with French dressing.

Age

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

IT IS only as we recognize the Minute upon Minute, Hour upon Hour, Day upon Day, philosophy of Time that we are able to enter into the serious lesson that Age has for us all. For Age has no philosophy excepting the philosophy of accomplishment, as it matures. Even as you think, you Age. And yet in Aging you are liable to realize the full meaning of every breath that you Breathe and of every single Effort you make.

In the Sunset is reviewed the glory of the day.

Age is Experience—crystallized, Age is Initiative—worked out. Age is the Dream—come true. Age is the Tree—full grown. Age is the Business Successful—a power in its area. What you are is the sum of your days in Age—Averaged.

In your Success is reflected the product of every one of your hours.

Age is not the mere piling up of years, for many a man is old at thirty, and many a man is young at eighty. For Youth is as elastic as Age, and Age is as elastic as Youth. Let the Experience of Age ever be a teacher to you. Let it Admonish as well as Encourage you.

POULTRY FACTS

BEST FEED FOR LAYING HENS

Composition of Ration Rather Than Method of Feeding Influences Egg Production.

Experiments in the methods of feeding laying hens show that the composition of the ration rather than the method of feeding has the greater influence upon egg production. The tests were made at the Ohio experiment station.

Rations for laying hens should contain from 10 to 12 per cent of meat scrap or a good grade of digested tankage, or their equivalent in skim milk.

The wet mash has some disadvantages, it is found, as it requires some time each day to prepare and give the mash and may cause digestive disturbances in the fowls if too much is fed.

A satisfactory ration consists in feeding a grain mixture of corn, three parts; oats, one part, by weight, and for the dry mash ration, ground corn seven parts, bran three parts, meat scrap five parts. About twice as much grain as mash should be consumed.

UPGRADING MONGREL FOWLS

try, the third generation of Barred Plymouth Rock grades showed marked uniformity in color and type, and White Plymouth Rock grades showed much improvement, but did not all come pure white in color. In both kinds of grades individuals occurred which so closely resembled stock of pure breeding that it was impossible to tell the difference by their appearance.

PRESERVING EGGS IN BRINE

Good After Eight Months if Simple Measures Are Taken—Lime Good as Water Glass.

Eggs laid during April and May are of better quality for preserving than are those laid later in the summer. One pound of air slaked lime added to cooled, boiled water is equally as good a preservative for eggs as water glass.

Only clean, fresh eggs with sound shells should be "put down." Use an earthen jar. Stir the lime thoroughly into the water and drop the eggs in as gathered. Some lime settles to the bottom of the jar but does no harm. Two or three inches of the solution should cover the eggs to allow for evaporation. Keep in a cool place, preferably in a cellar.

Eggs preserved by this method may be safely kept for eight months. When ready for use, remove only the eggs that are necessary.

CARE FOR CONFINED CHICKS

Much Greater Attention Needed Along All Lines Than Those Given Free Range.

Growing chicks that are kept closely confined need much greater attention along all lines than those that have range. See that they have plenty of green feeds that have not wilted down to almost the decaying point and that the yards are kept sweet. Culling also is more essential when chicks are closely confined.

DO NOT MAKE GOOD MOTHERS

Best to Use Incubators and Brooders With Leghorns, Minorcas and Similar Breeds.

Leghorns, Minorcas, and similar breeds, while having many qualities to recommend them, do not make satisfactory mothers and the work of hatching and brooding the chicks may be done more satisfactorily with incubators and brooders.

DOESN'T NEED ANY LAXATIVES NOW

Mr. Becker says life is a joy, without constipation or stomach trouble.

"Since taking Milks Emulsion my bowels move regularly. I have now taken ten bottles and have gained 10½ pounds. All my friends remark how fine I am looking, and it seems a pleasure to live again, without stomach trouble."—Bert Becker, Miami, Ohio.

Physicians usually make slaves out of their users, and weaken the bowels instead of correcting them. Stomach trouble in many cases is directly due to constipation.

Milks Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whose sickness has weakened, and is a powerful aid in restoring and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with spoon like ice cream. Truly wonderful for weak, sickly children.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions, and if not satisfied with the results your money will be promptly refunded. PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

MEN TURNING TO BOLSHEVISM

Something Profoundly Disquieting in the Constant Repetition of Word Which Seems to Convey Such a Sinister Meaning.

Article XII

By FRANK COMERFORD.

I met a young American major just back from the French front. I had known him for many years. Before the United States entered the war he was one of the many impatient at our delay. He believed that it was our duty to join the fight when the ruthless submarine campaign torpedoed the Lusitania, sending to cold, wet graves American women and children. I distinctly remember his face as he read the headlines in the papers telling of the murderous slaughter of Americans on the high seas. Now when he greeted me he startled me with his first words, "The war is over. I'm a bolshevik." I did not know what the word meant, yet it carried to my mind an impression, and while the impression was hazy, it was clear at least in one particular. It sounded like the confession of a crime.

He had always been of a quiet, conservative type. Before the war one would have judged him to be a pacifist; he was even tempered, mild of manner, and I still think that before August, 1914, he was a pacifist in head and heart. It was only the call of a just cause, the fight for an ideal in which he believed, that had made him a soldier. In this respect he was typical of 90 per cent of his countrymen.

I had spoken to him the day he enlisted, for he was one of those who volunteered, who might have waited for conscription and claimed a just exemption. He was in the beginning of his married life, with two very young children. By profession he was an engineer. Going to war meant leaving a wife and two babies, leaving a job that promised advancement. I recall his enthusiasm, the intensity of his patriotism, his quiet disregard of the danger to himself. I am sure that there was little hate in his morale. He saw a danger to the world. The honor of his country had been attacked. He was an American.

can, one of those upon whom the duty fell, so he went.

He is a bolshevik! Why? I was confounded, confused. The only meaning I gave to his remark was that he was an anarchist. The word "bolshevik" sounded red to me. It flared of the torch, photographed disorder, lawlessness—registered blood, violence, assassination, force, hate, insanity. I wondered how this nine-lettered word had become the vehicle for so many sensations that disturbed peace of mind and sounded alarm.

Where had the word come from and what company had it kept that so fouled its soul? What did it really mean—had it a definite meaning? Was it a bug like the "flu" germ? Had it come among nations to destroy them and to the hearts of men to silence the heavenly message, "Peace, on earth, good will to men." Would it run around the world as a scourge? Was it a postscript to the bloody war lesson, prophesying more anguish and tears than four years' fighting had wrought? Would the world, coming out of the war bent, now be broken? Or was it a meaningless myth? Was the word a bogie, a bad joke, a nightmare pressing heavily on a tired, nervous world's head?

Seeking Word's Real Meaning.

Or was the meaning that men had read into the word a lie? Was bolshevism the message of a new Messiah being cried down by the money-changers of our time in the same way their ancestors had silenced the word from the Mount and destroyed the Message Bearer with the lash and the cross?

In every mind was the thought and from every tongue fell the word. Russia had given the world a word. It had encircled the globe. Everywhere people were speaking the word—it found lodgment in every brain, a living place in every language. Its use had become universal. The old, the young, the rich and poor, the learned, the uneducated, the serious, the simple, the toiler, the artist, the poet, and the peddler, the tinker and the thinker, held the thought and spoke the word. Men, women and children spoke the word, read the word, and felt the thought it carried.

To the nine hundred and ninety-nine it was a word of ill-omen, a word of terror and fear. To the one in a thousand it was a word of hope, a light for the feet of a stumbling world, and the nine hundred and ninety-nine said that some of these people called bolsheviks were dreamers of a strange dream, that twisted idealism had made them mad, that the majority of those who profess faith in bolshevism were sick with a strange, social fever, that they were mischief-makers, ne'er-do-wells, criminals, that they sought to burn the world.

I made up my mind that I would learn the real meaning of the word. The dictionary definition threw no light on its meaning. I came to the conclusion that to learn what bolshevism is I might with wisdom adopt the scientific method used by the doctor of medicine in arriving at a diagnosis. The doctor examines and gathers the symptoms, the meaning of the disease. He then determines what diseases might produce these symptoms. By a process of elimination he discards one possibility after another until at last there is but one disease left, one thing that the symptoms can mean.

I discovered at the outset that most of us have the habit of using terms loosely. Seldom do we give time or thought to the exact, real meaning of things. The meaning of bolshevism is too important to the world not to try to understand it. There is a difference between having the acquaintance of a word and knowing; the former is a mere introduction, the latter an intimacy.

Since the war, when the fastidious diner wearily orders his consommé and the waiter brings it a bit tardily or cold, he thinks to himself, or if courageous enough to speak his mind, he calls the cook a bolshevik. He has found a word to express his irritation. It serves his profane feelings and at the same time saves his smug respectability.

See Bolshevism Everywhere.

Once the maid asking for an afternoon off provoked a knowing smile. Her mistress granted the request, charged it up to a possible romance and generally suspected the policeman on the beat. Since the war it is different. The maid is looked upon with suspicion. Her motives are questioned. The request is considered a symptom of the new terrible disease, bolshevism. The mistress thinks to herself: The maid doesn't want to work any more; she is down with the epidemic.

The office boy, working the reliable excuse that his grandmother has died again, to get an afternoon off to go to the ball game, is trying to shirk work, in the opinion of his employer, who formerly, when such an application was made from the same source, chuckled as he granted it, while his memory took him back to his own boyhood days when he used the grandmother yarn to answer the call of the ball field.

Many captains of industry see the symptoms of the new dread in every movement and thought of the workers. The demand for living conditions and decent wages are grudgingly received by minds soured by the thought that it is bolshevism.

The hirers of child labor, looking hatefully at legislation designed to end child slavery, call the leaders of child life conservation bolsheviks. When doctors and public-spirited men and women insist that an irreparable injury is being done the nation in allowing women to work for a period in excess of the hours they are able to work without menacing their motherhood, the profiteers from woman's labor cry out: "You are invading the right of private contract; you are mad with bolshevism."

Every Sort of Definition.

The wag with the wit of a barber defined bolshevism as a wild idea surrounded by whiskers. The saloon-keeper, bowled over by prohibition, screams "bolshevism." The anti-saloon leaders come back with the answer, "Your 'personal liberty' cry is only a camouflage for bolshevism."

If anyone disagrees with you, don't grant him the right to an opinion, don't reason with him—just call him a bolshevik. The word has become an epithet, a popular invective, a slur, an insult, an outlet for contempt, contumely and hate. Its parenthood influences our definition of it. Most of us see the Russians with the eyes of the caricaturists, who for so many years have portrayed the Russian as the moujik with high boots, disheveled hair, wild whiskers, the face of an assassin, the body of a terrorist in action, the suggestion of a long dagger smeared with hot blood, under his greatcoat.

If a doctor, making an examination of all of the patients in a hospital, discovered they all had certain symptoms in common, such as temperature, weakness and pain, and because of these findings should diagnose the sickness of all of the patients as pneumonia, the doctor would be regarded a lunatic, yet there are men in the world today who are as foolish as such a doctor would be. They call every symptom of unrest, without regard to its history, bolshevism.

Roumania's Oil Wells.

Many of the Roumanian oil wells are not in working order, which is chiefly due to the military measures taken by the allies at the time of the German advance in Roumania. Although Gen. Falkenhayn's experts devoted particular attention to the reconstruction of the dismantled wells, their work was crowned with limited success, and it will take a long period of systematic work to raise the Roumanian oil fields again to their pre-war importance. The Roumanian government is reported to have lately concluded a convention with the Austrian government whereby they are to supply the Austrians with petroleum and other material of primary necessity in exchange for industrial products.

Have Evidence Against Germans.

Evidence of German crimes is furnished by M. Delannoy, librarian of Louvain; Henri Davignon, secretary of the Belgian commission of inquiry; Paul Lambotte, director of the art galleries of Belgium, and M. Lamy, secretary of the French academy. The latter, it was said, has made a most telling indictment of those who were responsible for acts of savagery.

WHERE IS TRINER'S, THERE IS HEALTH

This slogan is correct even under the worst circumstances. Mr. A. F. Fencel, a miner from Galloway, W. Va., wrote us on January 15, 1920: "As to the results of Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine, I recommend it sincerely to the miners in case of constipation, headaches, stomach-ache, etc., caused by the vitiated air of the mine or by the powder-smoke and carbon gases after blasting, when the miner returns too early to his work before the smoke and dust have been sufficiently removed. Triner's American Elixir of Bitter Wine makes me and my brother more hardened and keeps us in good health, and others to whom I had recommended this remedy report the same results." If Triner's remedy helps under such circumstances, it must be good, and its results in normal conditions must be peerless. Ask your druggist or dealer in medicines also for Triner's Liniment which is excellent for rheumatism, neuralgia, sprains, swellings, etc. —Joseph Triner Company, 1333-43 S. URIC ACID IN MEAT CLOGS THE KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

The Most Beautiful yet Inexpensive Finish for Walls and Woodwork

Before the day of B & V Washable Interior Colors, such soft, velvety tones and shades were undreamed of.

Nor is their beauty short-lived. Walls and woodwork finished with these modern colors are permanently decorated. Soap and water are all that is needed to keep them fresh and new for years.

B & V Washable Interior Colors are largely responsible for the way kalsomine and wall paper have been swept into the discard by so many thousands of observing, discriminating homeowners.

Fresh paint is better paint. And like all B & V products, B & V Washable Interior Colors are fresh mixed when you apply them through our patented Base-and-Tinter system.

If you are interested in making home fresher and brighter, you'll find it worth while to inspect the color range of B & V Washable Interior Colors at our store.

FOR Insurance That Insures

New Lenox

A quite serious auto accident took place in front of the store of Brown and Fitzer Wednesday morning when a heavily loaded motor truck of the American Steel and Wire Company of Joliet collided with the car being driven by Dr. W. V. Hedges of Frankfort. The doctor saw the truck coming and turned out of the way so as to give the truck driver plenty of room, but the later did not attempt to give any room it is said and crashed into the doctor's car. One front wheel was torn off and the car was otherwise badly damaged. The truck driver did not stop after striking the auto but Dr. Hedges forced the driver to stop. In the car with Dr. Hedges at time of the collision were Mrs. Albert Pfaff and two children who he was bringing home from the Silver Cross hospital. Luckily no one was injured.

While Mrs. Kidwell was on her way home the other day after having visited at the Dickinson home she was stricken with what at first appeared to be a paralytic stroke. She managed to get home and a Joliet doctor was called. Later it was said that a blood clot on the brain had caused the trouble. She is getting along as well as can be expected.

Though the outdoors be zero you can enjoy the indoor comfort of seventy in a well ventilated and moistened atmosphere.

You can chase away forever the cold floors and chilly draughts which all Winter long are a constant menace to your health.

Moore's Simple System of heating, which can be easily installed in your house, will insure the lives, health, comfort and well being of the whole family.

A uniformly heated, properly moistened, and well ventilated atmosphere indoors is the surest protection against the ravages of colds, pneumonia, influenza and other indoor diseases.

With but one fire to tend, twice a day and controlled by a simple regulator in the hall or living room, a lot of the steps and bother of keeping warm are no longer necessary.

Two tons of coal as good as three by burning the gas, smoke and soot, which in other furnaces are all wasted—

Coal is getting to be a strong item in the family expense account. But there is a way to beat this higher cost of fuel.

Moore's Anti Carbon firepot constantly mixes air with the burning fuel so the gas, smoke and soot, are all ignited and converted into heat. It will burn slack as well as lump coal.

The United States government statistics show that this same old gas, smoke and soot constitute 38 per cent of the heating power of soft coal. The same authority also states that in ordinary stoves and furnaces these elements pass up the chimney unburned and are wasted.

With Moore's Furnace this 38 per cent of fuel is saved and in addition to that feature you get a Self-Cleaning Radiator which insures all of the heat being delivered to your rooms. One Oxidized Copper Register covers the only opening in the floor.
